The Republicans have been left in a bad war in Albany. Their loss of the Senate by one vote means losing control of all the big committees including the Lockwood Housing Committee. There is said to be a revolt among the Republican Senators against Lusk as leader.

Democrats were still hopeful yesterday that the contests they have started in districts where the vote was close may win for them seats enough to sive a majority of the lower house. It is doubtful. The Republicans have six majority. The Board of Aldermen will certify the election of several Republicans whom the Board of Elections have declared elected, even if there are contests.
